Edwards Will Address PC's 90th Commencement

Presbyterian's 90th Commencement will bestow 135 baccalaureate degrees and four honorary degrees as the culmination of day-long activities on May 17.

The main address will come from Dr. Robert C. Edwards, president of Clemson University. He will speak at the final exercises that afternoon after the morning baccalaureate sermon by the Rev. Robert A. Dobbins, Jr., minister of Chester's Purity Presbyterian Church.

Dobbins is one of two church leaders named by the trustees to receive honorary doctor of divinity degrees—the other being the Rev. James V. Johnson, Jr., minister of Atlanta's Druid Hills Presbyterian Church. Alumnus Powell A. Fraser, president of King College, will be awarded a doctor of humanities at this time; and Bluford B. Hestir, executive secretary of TRAV (Television, Radio & Audio-Visuals) for the Presbyterian Church US, a doctor of literature.

President Marc C. Weersing and Trustee Chairman Eugene T. Wilson of Atlanta will share in the Commencement program, at which student awards and ROTC commissions also will be presented.

Dr. Edwards, the main speaker, has been president of Clemson since 1958. He moved up after two years as development vice-president and an earlier career in the textile industry. His last two positions before going to Clemson were as plant manager of Abbeville Mills Corp. of the Deering Milliken organization and then as treasurer and general manager of the Abbeville Group, 1948-56. He is a Fountain Inn, S. C., native and a Clemson graduate.

Dobbins has been pastor of the Chester church since 1961 after pastorates in Thomson, Ga. (1953-57) and Elberton, Ga. (1957-61). A native of Montgomery, Ala., he earned his BS degree from Auburn University and his BD from Columbia Theological Seminary.

Fraser, a 1941 PC graduate, became president of King College last June. He went to this position after five years as director of development at PC. Previously, he had served a full career in the US Army, retiring as a highly decorated colonel in 1964 to join the PC staff. Fraser is a native of Brunswick, Ga., who also holds an MA from George Washington University.

Hestir's affiliation as executive secretary of TRAV dates from 1961, when he moved from information director of the General Council, Presbyterian Church US. He was a newspaperman and then director of journalism for the University of Texas' extension division prior to joining the General Council in 1953. A Grayson, Ky., native, he holds BA, BJ and MA degrees from the University of Texas.

Alumni Help Promote Scholarship

A n innovative scholarship and recognition program for talented high school juniors is inaugurated this year under the joint sponsorship of the College and the PC Alumni Association.

Almost 200 students from 94 high schools have been nominated as PC Junior Fellows for this year. They will receive Presbyterian College Junior Academic Achievement Awards, presented at each high school to the young man and young woman who—after the first semester of their junior year in high school—have the highest cumulative averages for the previous 2½ years of academic work. The award includes:

1—A citation designating each recipient as a PC Junior Fellow;

2—A minimum scholarship grant to each Fellow and automatic consideration in PC's broader scholarship program which annually awards some 25 grants ranging up to $7,200 to freshmen;

3—Consideration for participation in PC's new Summer Honors program. This latter program affords a limited number of selected high school students, during the summer prior to their senior year, the opportunity to attend the regular session of summer school. They may receive a special grant and earn up to 12 hours of college credit.

PC's Annual Giving

Published quarterly by Presbyterian College for Alumni and friends.

Challenge Grants of $10,000

Annual Giving Goal:

$160,000 for 1970

A record $160,000 goal looms ahead for PC's 1970 Annual Giving program now underway among alumni and friends and sparked by challenge grants totaling $10,000.

The program is starting on its second million dollars after achieving the cumulative $1 million total for the 1959-69 period. It raised $150,000 last year to go over the $150,000 mark for the second straight year.

Two anonymous challenge grants amounting to $10,000 have been added this year to encourage broader alumni participation. The plan for claiming the incentive funds is based upon an ascending formula aimed at 44 percent alumni participation. In addition, friends and parents of current students are solicited for support.

Special advanced gift approaches to trustees and major donors opened the 1970 effort in March, followed by a series of area drives in key locations. Personal solicitations drives will follow in other areas this spring and next fall, and mail contact also will be made in behalf of the program.

Annual Giving seeks support primarily for PC's current operating budget, with student aid, faculty salaries and departmental improvements as the main objectives. Alumni provide the main share of this support and have received national recognition from the American Alumni Council as leaders in this field.

Summer School Opens June 8

Fifty-four courses in 15 departments, including nine hours in post-graduate work, will be offered in PC's 1970 summer school.

The dates: First term—June 8 - July 15; Second term—July 16-August 21. Students may attend either or both of the five-days-a-week sessions and receive a maximum of six hours credit for each session (seven hours if a laboratory science is taken).

Continuing the program inaugurated three years ago, graduate credit will be offered in cooperation with Clemson University. These three courses in education and special education are designed primarily for teachers seeking to qualify for teaching certificates and for re-certification. Laurens County teachers get special rates.

Dr. Neal B. Prater, professor of English who serves as summer school director, points out that high school graduate may expedite their college education by beginning their freshman year at summer school. PC classroom and dormitory facilities are air-conditioned.

A $2.7 Million Budget

Besides nominating honorary degree recipients, the board of trustees adopted a $2.7 million budget for the coming year as part of its spring business action.

The governing body assembled on campus for its semi-annual two-day meeting on March 2-3 and increased the 1970-71 budget from the current $2.4 million with these designated expense items:

Instructional—$934,500; administrative and general—$341,000; operation and maintenance—$184,000; student aid—$181,000; auxiliary enterprises such as room and board—$913,410; and contingencies and depreciation—$148,815. The budget allows for salary increases of 6 to 8 percent.
